FESTECH (FuturEU Students as Transmitters of Cultural Heritage) is an idea that goes back to the time of Ancient Greece, where Aristotle in “Politics” claims that a citizen is not a citizen only because he lives in a certain place, but a citizen is one who is involved in public affairs, contributes to the implementation of national policies, wants to help a neighbour, share and transmit abroad local cultural heritage in order to raise awareness, inspire others and develop new international partnerships for the common good.
